

Manel Coleau

ArmorUp Media is very honored to have Emmy award winning Manel Coleau join our growing team. Manel's stellar reputation was born in newsrooms and edit booths at FOX, NBC, and CBS network and local television stations for nearly 20 years.

Ask Manel about his work and he will proudly say, "We all have great talents, I enjoy using my gifts to effect positive change and to impact the lives of others for the better. There is just something about taking raw material or being part of a production which produces content that drives millions of citizens to anticipate and watch your broadcast."

Manel spent 16 years working as a full-time videographer for various news organizations throughout the country creating delivering the highest quality of work. Thought the years, Manel has logged thousands of hours bringing covering every aspect of the television industry from interviews and filming process, pre/post production which involved editing and quality assurance. Manel's high profile and sought after work has allowed him to travel behind the lens covering many international news stories making headlines including the ValuJet crash, the Columbine High School shooting massacre, the highly publicized Elian Gonzalez deportation, 2013 Navy Yard Shooting and the 2015 United States Papal visit.

Manel is a team player with a high degree of integrity, professionalism, positive work ethic, adaptive to flexible working environments, self-motivated and thrives under tight deadlines.

As a photographer with excellent videography skills, a keen eye for lighting and a global vision, Manel is eager to bring his abilities and experience to your company's digital media and marketing project. Manel's extensive training and background will, no doubt, help your business meet its goal of producing exceptional content.